

of Cat Companions aboard

COMPANIONSHIP

Cats make wonderful companions. Levi enjoys sitting with us in the cockpit during extended journeys, relishing a good petting session. You'll always have a faithful companion, even on longer passages.

PEST CONTROL

Cats are excellent pest controllers, often brimming with hunting instincts. They delight in capturing anything small that moves or scurries. For instance, our male cat is adept at catching houseflies and small fish.

REGAINING ROUTINE

Cats reintroduce routine to the unpredictable daily life aboard: They can bring a sense of stability and routine.

TRAVEL REQUIREMENTS

Entry requirements for cats within the EU are more straightforward: Simplified entry regulations can be an advantage when traveling.

SIMPLICITY WITH CATS

Cats offer distinct advantages over dogs; they use a litter box and don't require leash walks. Additionally, many cats, especially when kept in pairs, can thrive independently for extended periods.

HEALTH BENEFITS

Research indicates health advantages for cat owners, such as a decreased risk of cardiovascular issues and the potential reduction in allergy development among children.

SEASICKNESS

Cats can experience seasickness: The cat's health and well-being are of utmost importance, and seasickness can affect their comfort and require immediate attention.

SUPPLY COSTS

The expense of high-quality cat supplies is a factor to consider, particularly when the destination's availability or pricing of these items could notably affect the overall budget.

LOGISTICS

Keeping a cat requires dedicated logistics. Ensuring a constant supply of necessities like food and litter is crucial for the cat's health and hygiene.

VET SUPPORT

Finding a reliable veterinarian can be challenging. The availability of veterinary care, particularly in different countries, is crucial for the cat's health and addressing any medical issues that may arise.

SCRATCHING

While training can help, the possibility of potential damage to items on board poses a concern but might be managed through training and preventive measures.

ADDITIONAL TIME

Cats require care. Allocating additional time for their needs is essential, emphasizing the responsibility that comes with having a pet on board.
